

College Myths “Busted”

We often hear many false rumors about the possibility of going to college. Here are a few myths busted wide open.

Our contact information:

First Peoples' Advising Services :

The Evergreen State College :
Olympia, WA 98505

Phone: 360.867.6467:

E-mail: firstpeoples@evergreen.edu

Website: www.evergreen.edu/multicultural

Myth #1

“Only rich people can afford college!”

False: Nearly 20 % of students aged 18-24 come from families that make less than with $25,000 per year. The federal government, states, and banks all offer different kinds of financial aid to help students afford college. Some forms of assistance come as money you do not have to pay back like grants and scholarships. Some come in the form of loans, many of which you do not have to begin paying back until you graduate or are away from school for a few months.

A wooden sign with a natural wood grain texture is positioned at the top right of the page. The text "Myth #2" is written on the sign in a black, hand-drawn, slightly irregular font.

“Only the best students get scholarships!”

False: Some people believe that you have to be an academic "superstar" to receive scholarships. In fact, although you should always try and get good grades, you do not have to be a straight "A" student, an athlete or get high SAT scores to receive financial aid. Many scholarships depend on the quality of the essay you are often asked to write, the community service work that you have done in your school or community and the ability that you have to write about that work and what it means to you. If you do not feel like you have done anything that is worthy of recognition, you still have time to go out there and volunteer! Don't be afraid to seek out your financial aid counselors at your school, they are there to help you at all stages of your college experience - from being a prospective student to your senior year in college. Do your best work and get excellent letters of recommendation. Know and meet all the Financial Aid deadlines and seek out scholarships online and in your community.

Myth #3

“You need to know exactly what you want to do when you grow up before you begin College.”

False: Approximately 70 % of college students change their mind about what they want to study before graduating. Hopefully, you can keep an open mind as you head off to college and research different career ideas so that at the end of your first or second year you can begin to narrow the possibilities about what career to pursue and begin choosing your classes based on what you have explored your first few quarters. Most students find it to be a journey of discovery.

Websites for more information:

www.evergreen.edu/financialaid/
www.fastweb.com
www.collegeplan.org
collegeboard.com
finaid.com

*This document was created by students and staff from
The Evergreen State College,
from the
Office of First Peoples Advising Services and translated into Spanish by Lilia Gomez, Washington Association of Community & Migrant
Health Centers as part of the Latino Youth Summit 2010*

Myth #7

“You can’t attend college if you are undocumented.”

False: Actually, in many states there are ways to attend college even if you are not a citizen of the United States and do not have documents. You can always call our office for more information.

Also, check out the websites provided here and on the next page for more information and resources.

maldef.org
getreadyforcollege.org

(resources for undocumented students)

Myth #4

“If you don't go to college now, you will never go later.”

False: While it is true that some students who don't go to college right after high school have difficulty attending later on, students who return after a pause in their education often bring great experience and skills to their college work because of what they did with their time off from school. However, in general, it is wise for most students to apply to colleges of interest during their senior year. Remember, you can always change your mind if you decide not to attend, but once you miss college admissions deadlines, the possibility of being selected after applying late is much lower. Applying late in the year also means less chance of being awarded a sufficient financial aid package.

Myth #5

“You should go to the most famous college that accepts you.”

False: Actually, you should go to the college that "fits" you best. If it happens to be a famous college (like Harvard or Yale), that's fine. However, "fit" has to do with how you feel when you're on the college campus. Fit has to do with finding a college where your learning style matches the philosophy of the college and how the professors teach. It is important to ask yourself questions such as:

- Do I like big schools or small schools?
- What is the class size that would fit me best?
- Do I want to go to school in a rural or urban area?

Where you decide to go should be based on an overall sense of fit not just a particular brand name. If the college isn't a good match for your individual needs, you may be unhappy regardless of how well-known the college is.

5

Myth #6

“ You shouldn't go to community college unless you want a vocational-technical career.”

False: Actually, you can start out at a community college and end up in any career if, like many community college students, you transfer to a four-year college after graduation. Most community colleges have curriculum and degrees specifically created to meet the requirements necessary to transfer to a four year institution. For many students this is an affordable path towards the goal of eventually earning a four year degree. If you decide to go this route make sure you work early on with counselors at your community college to confirm you are on the right track to transfer all of your credits.

6